

How to print your memorial card

Everything is already set up. You don't need to know anything technical.

Your card is ready to print — a front and a back, at the standard prayer-card size (2.5 × 4.25 inches). The file already includes the professional details a printer needs, so all you have to do is choose how to print it.

The easiest way — a print shop or your funeral home

Email or bring them this PDF and simply say:

“Please print this as a double-sided prayer card, 2.5 × 4.25 inches, on cardstock.”

That's all they need. Funeral homes and copy shops (your local printer, Staples, FedEx Office) make these every day. If you'd like the cards to last, ask them to laminate.

Prefer to order online?

At an online print service, search for “prayer cards” or “memorial cards,” choose 2.5 × 4.25 inches, double-sided, and upload this PDF.

Printing at home

- Use cardstock (heavier paper) if your printer allows it.
- In the print dialog, set the size to 100% or Actual size — not “Fit to page,” which shrinks it.
- Print on both sides (front and back).
- Trim along the small corner marks to the finished card size.

Good to know

- The faint marks at the corners just show where to trim — they get cut away and won't appear on the card.
- The slightly larger size is normal — printers trim a hair off each edge so the design reaches the very edge with no white border.
- Keep the file. You can reprint as many as you need, anytime.
